Members of PCOM’s Class of 1982 take the osteopathic oath during commencement ceremonies at Philadelphia's Academy of Music.

Policy of Non-Discrimination

Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine does not discriminate on the basis of age, race, color, national and ethnic origins, sex, sexual preference, religion, or handicap in the administration of its employment and educational policies, student admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, patient admissions and services and other programs administered by the College, Hospital, Health Care Centers and School of Allied Health.

Harvey G. Tomlinson, director of employee relations, has been designated coordinator of PCOM’s non-discrimination program. Inquiries regarding compliance with the program may be sent to Mr. Tomlinson at PCOM’s employee relations’ office. Inquiries regarding compliance with the sex discrimination provisions of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 may be directed to Mr. Tomlinson or to the Assistant Secretary of Civil Rights, Department of Education, Washington, D.C.
You are finishing one experience only to begin learning your next lesson in the ongoing educational process known as life. You have heard, I am certain, the quote that contends that the world suffers or benefits "not from that which a person has learned, but from what that person does with what he has learned." And what you do with what you have learned will be the true educational outcome of our curriculum.

... During the last four years, our faculty has had some control over your educational process and, consequently, the student and person that you have been. That control now ceases — may it be replaced by an inner control that compels you to be the best that you can be.

Please know that you have been our students, you have given us purpose and we will miss you.

Congratulations ... and God bless each of you.

Thomas M. Rowland, Jr.

Commencement

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter. I will be mindful of my responsibility to preserve the health and life of my patients, to perform faithfully my professional duties.

I will be vigilant in aiding in the general welfare of the community.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in the spirit of progressive cooperation.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art. I will be loyal to my college and strive always for its best interests and for the interests of the students who will come after me. I will be alert to further the application of basic biologic truths and develop the principles of Osteopathic Medicine. — Osteopathic Oath

PCOM graduates 201

Standing, their right hands raised in unison, the 201 members of the Class of 1982, proudly took the osteopathic oath at commencement ceremonies Sunday, June 4, in Philadelphia’s historic Academy of Music.

Joining PCOM’s graduating class was Edward P. Crowell, DO, executive director of the AOA for the past 13 years.

With their mortarboard tassels on the left, the fourth-year class members are now the new physicians.

Flanked by faculty marshals, Fairman Denlinger, DO, left, and Samuel Caruso, DO, right, members of the administration and faculty participate in the ceremonies.
years, who received the honorary doctor of laws degree. In presenting the degree, Dr. Rowland said, “During your service as chief administrative officer, the number of osteopathic colleges tripled, the number of graduates doubled and the number of osteopathic physicians increased from 16,000 to 20,000. Your judgment and administrative expertise in government and professional affairs have played an important role in this growth.”

Five master of science degrees were also presented at the ceremony, including the first M.Sc. degree granted in emergency medicine in the osteopathic profession.

Dean Robert W. England, DO, who gave the invocation and presented the degree candidates, cited the families of the new physicians for their role of support over the past four years. The graduates responded with cheers and applause.

The ceremonies concluded with the faculty, graduates and their families joining in the singing of America the Beautiful, a tradition that assumed greater significance in 1982, Philadelphia’s tricentennial year.

The new DOs give their families a standing ovation.

Patricia A. deAngelis receives her doctoral hood during commencement. She is the daughter of Millie DeAngelis of the division of continuing education and the late John DeAngelis who served the college administration for 24 years, 14 as chief financial officer.
Commencement

As admissions officer from 1950 to 1973, Dr. Rowland accepted hundreds of future DOs to PCOM. This year, as college president, he had the pleasure of presenting diplomas to the children of some alumni he had admitted. At graduation he met with many families as they welcomed another generation of DOs.

A. Archie Feinstein, '42, Bristol, PA, president of the AOA, welcomed his daughter Kathi '82 to the profession.

Mark T. DiMarcangelo, center, class of 1982, was congratulated by his brother, Michael C. '85, Cherry Hill, NJ, left, and their father, Michael C. '58, Marlton, NJ.
(1-r) Dr. Rowland, Nicholas Renzi '61, Philadelphia, Joseph J. Renzi '82, Brian Karlin '82 and Jack Karlin '61, Philadelphia.

Three generations of DOs were represented at the ceremonies: (1-r) Donald H. Thome '69, assistant dean for clinical education, his son, Jeffrey '82, and his father, Roscoe '35. Five generations of Tomes have maintained practices in northern Lancaster County.

Edward P. Crowell served the osteopathic profession with dedication and distinction for 13 years. As executive director of the AOA, he directed the association’s professional affairs during a period of enormous growth and advancement. During his service as chief administrative officer, the number of osteopathic colleges tripled, the number of graduates doubled and the number of osteopathic physicians increased from 16 to 20 thousand. His judgment and administrative expertise in government and professional affairs played an important role in that growth.

He was factual and honest in dealings with congressional committees, government agencies, state legislatures and health commissions. And he made himself readily available to solve individual problems with fairness and understanding.

As medical director of the Waterville, Maine, Osteopathic Hospital, he made important contributions to the advancement of osteopathic medical education. As voluntary hospital inspector for the AOA’s Committee on Hospitals and as chairman of the Hospital Committee of the Maine Osteopathic Medical Association, he helped to set and to promote high standards of health care delivery.

As an osteopathic physician and a certified specialist in internal medicine, he practiced with care, compassion and communication. Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine is proud to have been part of his clinical education during a three-year residency in internal medicine.

Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the 1982 Commencement for his dedicated service as an osteopathic physician, leader in the osteopathic profession and distinguished executive.
Master of Science

Master of Science degrees were presented to:

Robert D. Pelicata, DO, '78, in emergency medicine, the first in the osteopathic profession. His sponsor is John Becher, DO, chairman of the department of emergency medicine.

Judge J. Sydney Hoffman, left, chairman of the board of trustees, presents a citation to William J. Davis, DO, honoring him for his 23 years of service to the board. Dr. Davis resigned his board seat after being named professional director of the Hospital of PCOM in May.

Galen S. Young, DO, right, and Joseph Pellettiere Jr., DO, center, welcome the class of 1962 to membership in the alumni association through its class chairman, Anthony J. Silvagni. Dr. Young and Dr. Pellettiere are treasurer and president respectively of the association.

Philip Del Vecchio, MD, director of professional relations for Roche Laboratories, presents Dr. Rowland with a check for $20,000 for a one-year cardiovascular fellowship which will be served at the Hospital of PCOM. It was awarded to James Dale, DO, '79 and is the first Roche cardiovascular fellowship in the osteopathic profession.
The class of 1982 presented its alma mater with an endowment fund of $7,000 to be used for the PCOM library. This plaque was hung in the library to commemorate the gift. "This gift is in appreciation for the quality of education and the dedication shown by so many members of the college's administrative, faculty, professional and service departments," declared the class chairman in announcing the gift.

Someone once remarked that the spouse of an osteopathic medical student must have a funny bone, a backbone and a wishbone. Carrying on a tradition he began, Dr. Sherwood Mercer, professor of the history of osteopathic medicine, presented wishbone pins to spouses of members of the graduating class.

Recipients of the Lindback Foundation award for distinguished teaching are JoAnne Pieringer, PhD, assistant professor of biochemistry, and Joseph Dieterle, DO, professor and chairman of the department of pediatrics.

Dancing followed dining at the commencement dinner held at the Marriott on City Line.

$4 Million Capital Campaign 1981 1982 1983

We Have Reached The "Home Stretch" of Our $4 Million Capital Gift Campaign! The campaign, covering the years 1981, 1982, and 1983, proves once again the continued generosity of our alumni, parents and friends.

To date, contributions and pledges total $3,418,367.00. Particularly noteworthy is the number of individuals contributing $4,190 over the three year period. These donors will have their names engraved on a bronze plaque to be installed in the lobby of our newest building at 4190 City Avenue.

Additionally, a number of memorials in the amount of $10,000 have been received with these contributors having the option of designating a memorial plaque for an appropriate clinical or educational area.

We have a two-fold purpose in printing this list of contributors in 1982, with a full year of the campaign remaining. We would like those who have already made pledges and contributions to make certain that their names are listed correctly and that they are correctly designated for their giving category.

And we would like those who have not yet made a campaign contribution to consider doing so.

This campaign, the theme of which focuses on the future of our college being "In Your Hands and Ours", has been pivotal in providing the funds necessary to close 48th Street and consolidate our campus at City Avenue. We continue to strive to provide a quality osteopathic education. Won't you join your classmates and friends in helping this endeavor?

To those whose generosity has already helped to ensure the success of the Capital Campaign, a deep and heartfelt thank you. To those whose names are not yet counted here, please remember that your expression of support is most meaningful.

Very truly yours,

Thomas M. Rowland, Jr.

At a luncheon in June, the Hospital of PCOM honored 23 interns who completed a one-year rotating internship, and 22 residents who completed programs from one to five years in nine specialties. Also recognized were four osteopathic physicians completing fellowship programs at various hospitals in the city.

The 1981-82 interns — Samuel Alfano, DO; Gary Atkinson, DO; Ruth Austin, DO; Joel Chack, DO; Nicholas Chiumento, DO; Barbara Coleman, DO; Hudson Guffy, DO; Frank DeLia, DO; Kurt Ebrahim, DO; Cornelius Geissen, DO; Michele Hobson, DO; Allen Hoffman, DO; William Krajcirik, DO; Steve McNulty, DO; Enrico Marcelli, DO; John Mariani, DO; Larry Neustadter, DO; JoAn Orloski, DO; Mary Preuity, DO; Steve Richman, DO; Sharon Segal, DO; Arthur Sesso, DO, and Christopher von Hake, DO.

1981-82 residents — Emergency Medicine: Dennis Guest, DO; Robert Pelicata, DO; Paul Rossi, DO; Brian Silverman, DO; ENT: Paul Imber, DO; General Practice: Loretta Brown, DO; Thomas Powell Jr., DO; General Surgery: Joanne Chinnici, DO; Christopher Hasbach, DO; Internal Medicine: Robert Covett, DO; Bruce Margolis, DO; George Mitchell, DO; James Dale, DO; Orthopedics: Conrad Fraider, DO; Pediatrics: George Kenis, DO; Radiology: Michael Tieff, DO; J. William Wiand, DO; Podiatric Surgery: John Dahdah, DPM; Anthony Scalpato, DPM; Joseph Thomas, DPM.

1980-81 General Surgery: John McPhilemy, DO; Emergency Medicine: Carol Podder, DO.

Fellows — Pulmonary: Carl DiJoseph, DO; Michael Venditto, DO; Pediatric Cardiology: Harry Flanagan, DO; Reproductive Endocrinology: Michael Mansi, DO.

Richard Papa, DO, director of medical education, right, congratulates Arthur Sesso, DO, center, selected outstanding intern, and Bruce Margolis, DO, who was honored as outstanding resident for the second year. Dr. Margolis won the outstanding intern award two years ago.

David Condoluci, DO, chairman of the division of adult infectious diseases, was selected by the house staff as outstanding clinical teacher.

Volunteers Honored

Senior and junior volunteers were honored this August for their services to The OMCP. At a luncheon in their honor, Despina Mistovich, director of volunteers, cited some 125 men and women for their contributed services to all areas of the medical center, including the hospital departments and corporate offices.

Gail Milstzein of Wynnewfield, a senior at the Baldwin School, was particularly honored as representative of the spirit of voluntarism. For the last four years, during the summer months and on weekends during the school year, Gail has given her services in the radiology department, physical therapy and several of the offices.

“She’s done everything,” said Lisa Janson, director of physical therapy. “She’s answered phones and filed, transported patients and cleaned whirlpools. She is a remarkable person, who has eased our burdens with her efforts and brightened the lives of many of our patients.”

Gail, who plans to study computer science in college, said she didn’t feel she had worked that hard, since she loved every minute of it. This is her last year as a volunteer, since she will be focusing on her studies.

Frances Duthie, who for the past five years has brought music into the lives of HPCOM patients with her violin, led a stringed quartet in musical interludes during the luncheon.

Volunteers at The OMCP include the junior group of young men and women high school students; residents of Overmont House, who volunteer in the offices and create needlework art for pediatric patients and for the Philadelphia Fair; senior volunteers from Retired Senior Volunteer Persons (RSVP), who for the last six years have packaged silverware for patients, folded and inserted mailing pieces and stamped brochures; college students interested in medical learning experiences and many other dedicated men and women who are not affiliated with any particular group.
Osteopathic Discovery

A group of minority and disadvantaged students from Philadelphia had the opportunity to explore careers in medicine at PCOM this summer through the college's Osteopathic Discovery program. Each year five or six students who have completed 10th or 11th grade are selected on a competitive basis for the program which is now in its third year. They participate in Osteopathic Discovery full time for six weeks during July and August and may return in succeeding summers until they graduate from college. This summer, 14 students participated, according to Robert Cuzzolino, assistant director of admissions and student affairs, who heads the program.

In the first year of the program, students are exposed to a wide variety of areas in medicine and health care. They spend their mornings working in patient care, where their duties may range from filling water pitchers to helping a physical therapist. In the afternoons, they receive instruction from the college faculty in such subjects as anatomy, physiology, microbiology, pharmacology, biochemistry and electron microscopy.

In succeeding years, students are given responsible positions in research or clinical areas of the medical center and continue to meet in workshops on such topics as CPR and writing skills.

Cuzzolino said the program will eventually provide the college with “an additional pool of minority applicants who are not only academically qualified, but who have an appreciation of osteopathic principles.” While it will be several years before the first class of Osteopathic Discovery students enters medical school, they appear to be well on their way. Mr. Cuzzolino said all of those in the program who have applied to college have been accepted, with one young woman slated to attend Princeton University.

Faculty Notes

Emanuel Fliegelman, DO, FACOOG, professor of ob/gyn and director, human sexuality programs, was named a member of the board of consulting editors of Medical Aspects of Human Sexuality. He also was interviewed about the cervical cap, a form of contraception, on KYW-TV’s program, “Satisfaction Guaranteed” in July.

Steven Katz, DO, MSc, clinical assistant professor of surgery, was elected to active membership in the American Society for Gastrointestinal Endoscopy.

Edward A. Gotfried, DO, clinical assistant professor of surgery, was elected a fellow of the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons.

R. Michael Gallagher, DO, clinical assistant professor of general practice, was quoted regarding drug treatment for headaches in the August edition of “Success” magazine.

William Calhoun, MS, research assistant in physiology/pharmacology, was elected vice president of his local Jaycees Chapter. He will be responsible for both individual and management development programs. He is a member of the coordinating committee for CPR instruction for the American Red Cross in Lower Bucks County.

Sherman Leis, DO, clinical assistant professor of surgery, has been elected president of the Bala Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club.

Stephen D. Smith, DMD, director of the temporomandibular orthopedics center, lectured at a two-day program on the temporomandibular joint at the University of Maryland-Baltimore, School of Dentistry. In addition, he was interviewed on Minnesota public radio about TMJ-related problems.

Tage N. Kvist, PhD, associate professor of anatomy, received a $4,000 research grant from the Spina Bifida Sunday, Inc., for his study of the causes of spina bifida.

John Simelaro, DO, FCCP, associate professor of internal medicine and chairman of the division of pulmonary medicine, was appointed director of screening health services for Amtrak Corp.

Eugene Della Badia, DO, clinical assistant professor of psychiatry, has been appointed to the American Osteopathic Board of Neurology and Psychiatry.

James F. Conroy, DO, clinical associate professor of internal medicine and chairman, division of hematology and oncology, was elected a fellow in the American College of Physicians.

John Becher, DO, professor and chairman of emergency medicine, has been named chairman of the American Osteopathic Board of Emergency Medicine.
Members of The OMCP congratulated two alumni (and alumni board members) for their leadership roles in the AOA. A. Archie Feinstein, DO, ’42, was installed as president of the AOA in July; and John A. Cifala, DO, ’45, was installed as first vice president.

Dr. Feinstein is medical director and director of medical education at Delaware Valley Medical Center. At PCOM he served as professional director and director of medical education from 1971 to 1973 and as assistant dean for clinical education until 1977. His two children, Michael ’74 and Kathi ’82, are also PCOM graduates.

Dr. Feinstein has been active in local and state osteopathic associations, as well as in the AOA, serving as president of POMA, Philadelphia County Osteopathic Medical Society, and PCOM’s Alumni Association, among many others. He is a fellow of the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons and a fellow of the American Osteopathic College of Allergy and Immunology.

Dr. Cifala practices in Arlington, VA, and is a past president of the American Osteopathic College of Rehabilitation Medicine and the Virginia and Maryland Osteopathic Medical Associations.

Alexander M. Rosenau, DO, ’81 was appointed staff physician and clinical instructor at the Sullivan County Medical Center in Laporte, PA, in July. Dr. Rosenau reports that the center offered a number of community services this summer including free blood pressure testing at the Laporte Firemen’s Carnival and first aid at the Sullivan County Marathon and the Lake Mokoma Cross Country 6.2-Mile Run.

Virginia Gavigan, director of financial aid at PCOM, attended the Ninth Annual Financial Aid workshop sponsored in May by the Education and Scientific Trust of the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

Senior citizens in North Philadelphia received free health screenings and met with representatives of agencies serving the aged through three health fairs conducted in June under the direction of Beverly Byrd. She is health care center social service and community liaison. Clara Baldwin Center, St. Columbus Parish and Senior Wheel West were the sites of the fairs which included talks on osteopathic medicine, rectal cancer tests, foot care screening and visits with representatives from the Red Cross, Social Security Administration and the R.N. Home Health Agency.

Agnes Sayers, who worked in the laundry, retired this summer after 11 years with The OMCP. On hand to wish her well in retirement was Joe Flamini, assistant hospital administrator.
Women’s Guild member, Argia Di Marco, and her husband, Domenic, who is a professor at LaSalle College, were honored by the American Institute for Italian Culture in May. They were one of three couples receiving the Institute’s Presidential Awards for 1982. Two of their four sons, Eugene and Claude, are members of the class of 1984 and a third, Carlo, is a resident at HPCOM in ophthalmology.

The OMCP’s professional staff elected new officers in August. They are: Chairman, William Dickerson, DO, professor and chairman of the department of internal medicine; vice chairman, J. Peter Tilley, DO, professor of radiology; secretary, Richard Papa, DO, director of medical education; treasurer, Samuel Caruso, DO, professor of general practice; sergeant at arms, Nicholas S. Nicholas, DO, professor and chairman of the department of osteopathic principles and practice.

The Secret Service inspected The OMCP this summer and approved it as an emergency center for visiting VIPs. The OMCP first received the designation in 1980 when President Jimmy Carter was in Philadelphia, and has received it each year since.

New Appointments

Robert J. Maurer of Pittsburgh was appointed administrator of HPCOM in August. He has 22 years experience in hospital administration and most recently served as administrator of Maple Avenue Hospital in DuBois, PA, for nine years. Other positions he has held include vice president for administration at St. John Hospital in Detroit, MI, and administrator at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe, MI. Mr. Maurer holds a bachelor’s degree from Duquesne University and a master’s degree in hospital administration from the University of Pittsburgh.

He is a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators, the American Hospital Association, the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania and the Hospital Council of Western Pennsylvania, and holds membership appointments to a variety of committees in these groups. He is married and the father of five children.

The Cancer League of Philadelphia recently presented a check for $6,340 to Robert L. Meals, DO, chairman of the department of radiology, to be used for equipment in the detection and treatment of cancer. From left: Rita Dector, hospital chairman; Rose Levy, president; Dr. Meals; Esther New, president of the parent chapter; Rose Weintraub, vice president. (Rae Lefkoe, outpatient registrar, was the helpful contact who steered the Cancer League to HPCOM.)
News from the Alumni Office

It is a great pleasure for me to welcome the Class of 1982 to the alumni association and wish each member success and happiness in his and her profession. The highlight of our summer was, of course, the Commencement activities including the awards dinner and graduation. The alumni association was pleased to provide a buffet luncheon after the rehearsal at the Academy of Music, as well as a traditional graduation gift for each new DO.

After rehearsal, Dr. Joseph Pellettiere, president of the association, and Dr. Galen S. Young, treasurer, presented an alumni certificate to the class chairman, Tony Silvagni, and awarded each new DO honorary membership in the association through 1983.

Also in June, I enjoyed participating in the successful Ohio Osteopathic Association Convention. John P. Sevastos, DO, the outgoing president, presented PCOM with a check for $9,000, collected through the Ohio Osteopathic Progress Fund. These individual contributions from our alumni in Ohio are a welcome addition to our Capital Campaign and are credited to each physician as a total gift to PCOM. My thanks to you all.

Hale T. Peffall, Jr.
Executive Director of Alumni Relations

Sharing the alumni association award for the performance of professional duties in the hospital and outpatient services were David Kalodner, left, and Stuart Hartman. Hale T. Peffall Jr., (center) executive director of alumni relations, was on hand for congratulations.

Nurse Alumnae
Irma J. Reese, RN, Glenolden, PA — honored by 150 persons at a dinner upon her retirement as director of nursing education at Chester County Hospital’s School of Nursing, a position she held since 1965.

Add ‘E.T.’ to his credits

Dr. Kogan

Acting and medicine are two demanding careers, but PCOM alumnus Milt Kogan ’80 makes time in his life for both. This year, he combined the two in the hit movie “E.T.,” playing an Army colonel who leads the medical team that tries to resuscitate the extraterrestrial.

Interviewed recently by telephone, Kogan said one of the most exciting aspects of working on E.T. was auditioning for Steven Spielberg, the director.

Other appearances he will make this fall include parts in two television programs, “Six Months With Another Woman,” starring John Ritter, and “Cagney and Lacey.” He also plays the lead in a new cable series, “Love Ya Florence Nightingale.”

When he’s not on the set, Kogan is seeing patients in his office in Los Angeles. A general practitioner, he is also a member of the clinical faculty in the department of family medicine at UCLA.

PCOM alumni may remember Kogan for his role as a top scorer on the Westside Collegians basketball team, then coached by Dr. Rowland. He also led the Atlas Club to the intramural championship in 1959.
In Memoriam

William C. Weisbecker ’27, Alburtis, PA, died June 9. He was 79. A native of Philadelphia and graduate of Northeast High School, Dr. Weisbecker taught anatomy to college and nursing students. He started a general practice in Philadelphia in the early 1950s, moved to Alburtis shortly afterwards and practiced there for 30 years. He is survived by his wife, the former Gene T. Smith.

(From a letter from Mrs. W.C. Weisbecker: “He was not well for many months but his last days were brightened by the many letters and cards he received from nurses and friends he had known and taught. They gave him so much pleasure that I wanted you all to know. Thank you.”)

Harvey R. Haupt Sr. ’28, Leesport, PA, died August 6. He was 77. He had maintained a general practice for 40 years, retiring in 1968. He was a past president of the Berks County Osteopathic Association. Surviving are a son, Harvey R. Haupt Jr ’60, and daughter, a brother, eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Judson W. Johnston ’28, Syracuse, NY, died January 16.

A. Richard Davies, ’30, Brick Town, NJ, died March 10. He was 75. He started a general practice in New York and moved to East Orange where he practiced for 41 years, retiring in 1972. He was a life member of the AOA and of the New Jersey Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, a sister and four grandchildren.

Charles W. Snyder, Jr., ’33, died on August 29. He was 73. Before retiring in 1975, Dr. Snyder had served as professor and chairman of the department of ENT, from 1971 to 1975. Dr. Snyder had been associated with PCOM and its hospitals for 41 years, in addition to maintaining an active practice on Spring Garden Street. He rose from clinical assistant in the ENT department to full professorship in 1969 and chairman in 1971.

In 1975, Dr. Snyder retired from the faculty and professional staff and from his Philadelphia practice, and moved to Cape May, NJ, where he and his wife had spent 35 years as summer residents.

Dr. Snyder held the master of science degree in otorhinolaryngology, had received the Lambda Omicron Gamma Fraternity award for teaching in 1971, and the Lindback Foundation award for distinguished teaching in 1972. He was an active member of the alumni association and served as secretary for 10 years.

Dr. Snyder was a graduate of Germantown High School and attended the University of Pennsylvania. In 1970 he spent a winter in London, England, in postgraduate studies at the Royal London Nose and Ear Hospital. He is survived by his wife, two sons and three grandchildren.

Spencer G. Bradford ’42, Narberth, PA, died August 15. He was 63. Dr. Bradford had been an important part of PCOM for more than 38 years, as a physician, teacher, scholar, author and historian. “A beloved physician,” his pastor said in eulogy, “with the mind of a scientist, an appreciator of research, a man of literary flair and a source of inspiration.” He was all these and more: a man of gentle humor and great kindness.

Dr. Bradford taught physiology and pharmacology at the college for nearly 30 years, and received the Lindback Foundation Award for distinguished teaching in 1963. He served as chairman of that department for 14 years. In 1972 he was appointed assistant dean for basic sciences, and director of continuing medical education in 1976. When the division of special and continuing education was formed in 1979, he was appointed its director, a position he held at the time of his death.

In addition to medical seminars, extended courses and specialty programs for physicians, Dr. Bradford created and conducted a number of public and community service programs. Among these were “magnet” middle school programs for sixth-graders; an on-job training, special volunteer program for retarded educable students at Lower Merion School for Physicians, Dr. Bradford also provided consultation for nursing and dental programs and assisted with institutional diabetes, heart disease and obstetric educational programs.

He held a master of science degree in physiology from the college, and had published many medical and scientific articles in professional journals. Dr. Bradford served as assistant editor for “Osteopathic Medicine,” a book published in 1969.

He was a member and historian of the Alumni Association and had served as chairman of that association’s publications committee during the 75th anniversary celebration.

He was a member of the AOA, the POMA, PCOM’s Alumni Association, the American Academy of Osteopathy, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the New York Academy of Science. He was past president and member of the National Board of Examiners for Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons. He was a member of the church council of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Narberth. Always supportive of community affairs, he had received an award for such service from the Chapel of the Four Chaplains.

Dr. Bradford is survived by his wife, Jean, an active member of the Hospital Women’s Guild, six children, his parents, a sister and four grandchildren.

Donald A. Baxter ’56, Warren, RI, died on July 21. He was 55. Dr. Baxter, an assistant state medical examiner, was killed by a speeding car at a crash site where he had just pronounced dead another accident victim. His death stunned a community to which he had returned after medical school to serve as a physician, teacher and active citizen. He had served as physician for the Warren school system and Little League, as team physician for Warren High School’s sports teams, regimental surgeon for the Warren Militia and founder of the Warren Rescue Squad. A specialist in emergency medicine, he chaired the emergency department of Cranston General Hospital for the past six years. Also he was a member of the faculty of the New England College of Osteopathic Medicine and instructor in emergency medicine at Rhode Island Junior College. He was a member of the Governor’s Advisory Committee on Emergency Medicine and served as northeast regional coordinator for the American College of Emergency Physicians. Dr. Baxter was a member of the AOA, the Rhode Island Society of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, the American College of Emergency Physicians and the American Medical Society on Alcoholism. He is survived by his wife, mother, 10 children and 12 grandchildren.
